Question:

The existing site of the Ap Lei Chau Driving School, currently used as a driving school designated by the Government, is let by way of short term tenancy which will expire on 15 June this year. The Government has said that the continual operation of the school would be allowed by going through normal procedure. What is the progress? What is the term of the new tenancy? Did the Government help identify other locations on Hong Kong Island to be used as a driving school designated by the Government? What are the details?

Asked by: Dr Hon Kenneth CHAN Ka-lok (Member Question No. 10)

Reply:

The existing short term tenancy of the Ap Lei Chau Driving School (the School) will be extended to June 2018 with a revised site area. To reprovide some of the facilities entailed by the site revision, an adjacent site has been let to the School under another short term tenancy for a term until June 2018 at market rent. In the meantime, the Government will continue to identify a suitable site on Hong Kong Island for relocating the School in the longer term.
